LEADERSHIP
BOARD OF DIRECTORS & STAFF

DAVID RHODES
President - Board of Directors
David started with The GardenWorks Project in 2006, and has been a board member ever since.

MATT TANSLEY
Secretary - Board of Directors
Matt Tansley is a Land Use Planner with Kane County Development.

KATHY HEBERT
Board Member-Board of Directors
Kathy started gardening as a hobby in 2005, and has since expanded to featuring native plants. She has since planted for pollinators, community gardens, and has added vegetable gardens. She finds gardening to be relaxing, and a great way to connect with the (and other) volunteers (and their families). Kathy is active in Special Olympics, and volunteers at the Backpacks. She became a volunteer at GardenWorks a year ago and is currently working on a project of the efforts when a build is completed and when she goes back to visit the clients. She is currently a part-time retired special education teacher and hopes to continue to use her teaching skills with the Backpacks.

JEANNIE ISEMAN
Executive Director - Staff
Born sharing a passion for gardening and community building, Jeannie started her own business...

OUR ROOTS, OUR COMMUNITY, OUR MISSION

GIVING GARDENS TO PEOPLE IN NEED

It all started on a random trip to the library with the kids, when I spotted the book 'Reclaiming Our Food' by Tanya Calkin. I was immediately drawn to the 'Reclaiming Our Roots' section. I grabbed it and devoured it without reading anything more than the title. It proved to be a serendipitous find, because it changed my life.

In the last two years, I have found my calling career-wise in the field of landscape design. I love designing gardens and have met some wonderful people since I started my business. But I wanted to do more. So when I opened this book and read the very first section, 'Giving Gardens to People in Need', it was intriguing. Building vegetable gardens for families in need was something I had never heard of before. It was something that I wanted to do. I wanted to help. I wanted to make a difference. I wanted to continue my love of horticulture with my husband's interest in community work, providing a volunteer activity that we could do with our two young kids.

Although we live in one of the wealthiest areas in the country, there is still hunger and poverty in Chicago's west suburbs. According to the West Suburban Community Pantry, "Over 95,000 people in DuPage County go to bed hungry every night. Of those, over 45,000 are children. Over 40% are children." Having kids of my own, this statistic floors me. It's unbearable to think about kids going without even the most basic human need - food - in the Chicago suburbs. I firmly believe that we are all entitled to eat fresh, organic food, and know I could make a difference.

Since food pantries often have difficulty obtaining and storing fresh produce, we knew that building gardens was a good place to start. We contacted the Glen Ellyn Food Pantry, and they were very receptive to providing the soil, plants, and support the families might need to get started. We approached the Glen Ellyn Food Pantry to ask if they would help us to identify needy individuals or families, and they were enthusiastic to help. We called the project GardenWorks.

By the end of 2012, we had four gardens (we couldn't reach one of the families due to a legal issue) and had provided plant therapy, vegetable seedlings, and taught seven adults and seventeen children how to grow their own food. I was able to step outside of my busy life, which I admit was focused mainly on my own family, and do some good for someone else. And I was able to do it with a sense of balance and satisfaction in a way that I've never experienced before.

In 2013, with the help of dedicated volunteers, we refreshed those four gardens with new compost and seedlings, and gave ten more gardens to people who were both food insecure and wanted to grow their own food at home. In 2014, we built 20 more gardens. We partnered with the Glen Ellyn Food Pantry, Budget Commodity, People Resource Center, and the Chicago Department of Water Management, and the First United Methodist Church in Elmhurst to identify families who both needed food and wanted to learn to grow at home. Our residential gardens currently serve 165 individuals, about half of whom are children. We could not have done this without the help of 175 community volunteers who dedicated their time and talents to the project.

You can be part of this growing community of people who are passionate about helping others. Become a GardenWorks Project volunteer or donor and help those in your community who need it most.

COMMUNITY GARDEN RESOURCES

DONATE PRODUCE FOR PANTRIES
According to the 2010 U.S. Census Bureau, 42.2 million Americans are living in food-insecure households, including 13.1 million children. Food pantry clients are at the highest risk for inadequate intake of fruits and vegetables, as are non-poor food-insecure individuals. Not producing enough produce is a problem. In order to respond to these needs in our community, The GardenWorks Project strongly encourages home and community gardeners to donate excess harvest to food pantries.

There are approximately 42 million home and community gardens in the U.S., with estimates of 17.47 billion pounds of excess produce annually. Based on estimates that can be donated by gardeners could potentially provide enough produce for over 27.5 million people. Home gardeners in DuPage County can make a difference by expanding their gardens for the purpose of donating their extra produce to a local food pantry.

Increasing yields is simple with resources provided by the GardenWorks Project Food Growers Network. We offer our members access to growing tools, seeds, plants, and discussions on seed-saving and raised bed garden planning.

When you find yourself with extra produce throughout the year, consider donating to your local food pantry. Your produce can inspire more growers and provide healthy food for the 74,000 food insecure in DuPage County. Any amount of produce is helpful and needed.

POVERTY IN CHICAGO SUBURBS

While DuPage County is one of the wealthiest suburbs in the nation, with a median income of over $77,000, there are still residents who cannot afford even the most basic human need - food. According to the West Suburban Community Pantry, "Over 95,000 people in DuPage County go to bed hungry every night. Of those, over 45,000 are children." Over 45,000 are children.

We believe that everyone deserves healthy, organic food, not just those who have the means to afford it. For more information on poverty in DuPage County, visit:

Before the flip N... B U A

Our Community Gardens are a part of our Neighborhood Revitalization Initiative in the Greenbrook Tang Neighborhood Revitalization (NR) is the practice of working with residents and communities to take a holistic approach to community reinvestment. Through this process our team has worked with residents to gain feedback on which aspects of their community needed improvement. Once we had the core areas identified, we worked with residents to see how we could achieve these improvements. The Community Gardening program was developed out of the need that residents wanted a community space for others, and not just themselves, as well as a way to enhance the greenspaces in their neighborhood. Our team has been able to create three community garden spaces throughout the Greenbrook Tang Neighborhood over the past two years.

The first garden is located behind the Tanglewood Clubhouse, a central location in the neighborhood. The

After the flip N... B U A

The second garden is located in a greenspace in the Tanglewood community. We used two of our raised beds to create a garden for the community, and are piloting this space that we may look at expanding in the future. The gardens here will get great sun, as well as have access to a water source. We look forward to producing more in the future.

Our third garden is at Greenbrook Court J. This little Neighborhood is located across the street from the Greenbrook Tang Neighborhood. We used three raised garden beds in this space. Residents in this area may not have a lot of space in their back yard, so we worked with them to develop a gardening program that would help them all to work together.

Intro

The GardenWorks Project coordinates events throughout the year to bring together people who wish to grow food for themselves and those in need. We offer organic vegetable gardening programs, volunteer events, and opportunities for you to support our mission. Come on out and meet like-minded neighbors dedicated to growing organic produce at home and supporting families who rely on food pantry assistance.
